AWARDS: 010 BOOKS

010 has hit the jackpot again. The Metropolitan World Atlas has won the Gold Medal in the 'Best Book Design from all over the World' competition. This news had scarcely had time to sink in before the next wave of winners, in the Best Dutch Book Design competition, was upon us. This year no less than four 010 books have won a prize: the Metropolitan World Atlas (again!) and the Limes Atlas (both designed by Joost Grootens), Flying Lightness (designed by Erik Wong and Eva Heisterkamp) and Arco 12 (designed by Thonik). Our heartiest congratulations to all concerned!

Every year more than 15,000 books are published in the Netherlands. Only 30 are selected for the Best Dutch Book Design competition. This time four of these are 010 books, making 010 Publishers the most awarded of all this year's contenders.

These four books and all other winning titles will be on show from May 19th until June 18th 2006 in the Stedelijk Museum CS in Amsterdam and later in Museum Meermanno in The Hague. See also www.bestverzorgdeboeken.nl.

All of these books can be ordered through www.010publishers.nl.

CAKE

And on top of all this good news, we were surprised by a scrumptious cake sent to us by an anonymous fan. Thank you, it was delicious!

OIO

010 JOURNAL

You can find more news in our annual Dutch-only 010 Journal. The 2006 issue includes an interview with star graphic designer Joost Grootens about the Metropolitan World Atlas. Check out this year's 'my favourite 010 book' slots and read why 010 took matters to court. If that were not enough, you can win amazing prizes with a special 010 puzzle.

Does the 010 Journal appeal to you? Check the pdf at www.010publishers.nl or send an email to rowena@010publishers.nl for the paper version. Unfortunately there is no English edition.
